DRESSING UP

It was enchanting to see the children dressed as their book characters yesterday. I spent some time with Class 8 and was so impressed to hear them articulate so clearly who they were and, in some cases, describe in detail the plot of the story they came from.

The expressive language the children were using was clear, conversational and descriptive and they responded very well to Miss Wigmore's open ended questions.

WORLD BOOK DAY SWAP

Thank you so much for supporting the Book Swap. I understand that, for some children, the idea of giving away their book was a challenge but imagine that this was surpassed with the joy and excitement of taking home a new book to enjoy.

We have been left with a number of excess books which we did not expect. If you donated more than one book and only chose one book to take home, please do let us know and we can arrange for you to come and choose some further ones. Any books that are not picked up by parents will be incorporated into the school's collection for all to enjoy.

I would like to also extend my thanks to Mrs Cohen, Mrs Murphy, Ms Nafees, Mrs Battat-Smith, Ms Kumar and Mrs Yu for their help manning the stall.

READING STORIES

A number of our assistant teachers enjoyed reading books to children in classes other than their own during the day. Not only was hearing stories enjoyable for the children, we are also building the children's confidence with less familiar adults by facilitating this opportunity.

ACTIVITIES

The day was filled with book related activities, including making book marks, designing book covers, celebrating the story of the week and making associated crafts. The children all had the opportunity for speaking and listening when showing off their costumes to their friends and most importantly sharing the love of books and the joy they bring.

PARENTS EVENING

Appointments should have now be arranged and the teachers are very much looking forward to meeting with parents next week.
